IBM DB2 Academic Associate Program

IBM DB2 Academic Associate Exam User Guide for Students

1 Overview

Qualified students or other academic personnel wishing to take the IBM DB2 Academic Associate exam should follow these steps:

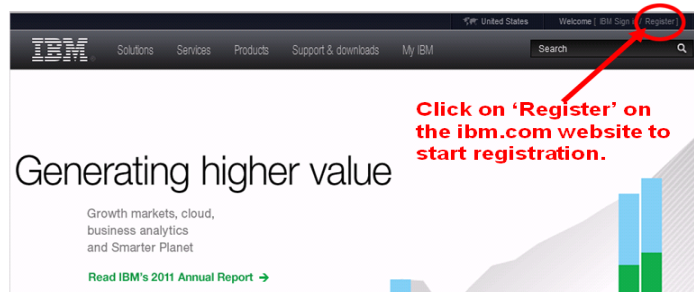

1. Register at ibm.com to obtain an IBM ID (or use your existing IBM ID, if you have one) Bring your IBM ID and password information to the exam.
2. Bring your student or university ID (including something with a picture) with you to the testing session.
3. Be on time (or early!) to the testing site and provide to the proctor your identification materials and any additional information to prove you successfully completed the DB2 Academic Associate preparation course (if your instructor provides anything to you)
4. Follow instructions from the proctor on how to enroll for the appropriate test session on the testing website.
5. Take the test! You will find out immediately if you passed the test. A certificate will be emailed to those students who pass the exam. The email address used to register for the IBM ID will be used.

2 Registering for an IBM ID at ibm.com
